Stewardship – Why not you?

by Steve Alaimo

What does a Union Steward do?

A Steward is one of your co-workers who assists employees with issues that come up at work. A Steward is responsible for building a strong Union in the workplace.

A Steward helps bring your CBA (Collective Bargaining Agreement) to life by assisting members to understand their rights and ensure that the employer follows the rules set out in the CBA. Union representatives are their to help members manage their relationship with the employer.

Your Steward is someone who can speak to your Supervisor/Manager on your behalf, with your consent. If something bothersome happens at work or you notice a problem, your Union Steward is there to help. Communication is key; Union Stewards can only bring issues forward to the employer if they are made aware of those issues. Do not assume that your Union Stewards are aware of everything that happens within the workplace or department. If you notice a violation of the CBA or are upset about something, please talk your Union Steward.

Some duties of a Union Steward are:

- Introducing new employees to the Union and their CBA.
- Listening to the employees' concerns, investigating incidents, and finding solutions.
- Representing the Member's interests during meetings with the employer, managing expectations and providing information.
-  Never attend a discipline meeting without a Union Steward or Executive Officer present.***
- Posting Union notices to your workplace Union bulletin board.
- Discussing workplace issues with the employer regularly.
- Filing grievances when an issue cannot be resolved through discussion.
- Attend monthly Steward meetings and take union education.
- Staying in contact with the Executive Officers, in particular, the Unit Vice President and the Chief Steward (Vice President of the Local).

If you are interested in becoming a Steward, email your name and work location to: berberick@cupe5167.org to find out if there is a vacancy!

What's is Seniority?

What is seniority; A listing of workers in order based on time worked. Employers often use seniority to decide who will be promoted, laid off or recalled. Seniority is usually applied across the bargaining unit, but it may be limited to a department or classification depending on the application. For example, overtime would most likely be based on the classification. Sick time does not impact seniority, nor does parental leave. Most unpaid time, leave of absences or time out of scope will impact seniority.

What is Service; The length of time you've worked for an employer. Benefits such as vacation are often linked to length of service. A member who works at the Lodges and then leaves to work for the City would keep their years of service in-tact provided there is no break in service; (same Employer) however, they do not carry over their seniority between Collective Agreements.

The Employer tracks seniority and service; the union is provided with the lists as outlined in the Collective Agreements.

Airport: Article 11 – Posted in January each year (260 days is 1 year)

City: Article 14 – Posted March 1st and September 1st each year (260 days is 1 year)

DARTS: Article 15 - Posted in January each year (260 days is 1 year)

GSWS: Article 11 – Posted by the 31st of January and July each year (260 days is 1 year)

GSFC: To be determined – bargaining their first Collective Agreement!

Lodges: Article 13 – Posted February 1st each year (1830 hours is 1 year)

RBG: Article 13 – Posted in January each year (260 days is 1 year)

SMH: Article 12 – Posted January and July each year (1820 hours is 1 year)

It's your responsibility to check your seniority!!

If you find a discrepancy you must address it within the timelines of your Collective Agreement. Look to the article about seniority and the article about filing a grievance. Please contact your Employer or the union Executive Administrator regarding discrepancies.

We want our members to be educated and to review their seniority and dispute it if required. We believe in union solidarity, based on the principle that union members are equal and deserve mutual respect.

If you have questions, please ask.

CUPE Ontario opposes Province's privatization of employment services

CUPE Ontario's Social Services Committee condemns this as a privatization scheme, saying that the government should have made the announcement on Groundhog Day, which was earlier this month, since it's almost an exact replica of the JobsNow Pilot Project the Liberals established 15 years ago.

Scrap bank of privatization, says Hancock

The federal Liberals want to "reboot" their bank of privatization. According to the Globe and Mail, some government officials are frustrated the Canada Infrastructure Bank hasn't moved fast enough to privatize our water, roads, bridges and other infrastructure.

CUPE National President Mark Hancock says we shouldn't salvage the Canada Infrastructure Bank - we should shut it down. He shared our union's view in a letter published in the Globe and Mail. We know the bank has big plans to privatize our water and wastewater systems. Together, we can keep our water public.

COVID-19 is a new illness that has infected thousands of people across the globe, so far mainly in China. Originating in Wuhan, China, COVID-19 is caused by a virus from the same family as the SARS (severe acute respiratory syndrome) coronavirus. Though serious, indications are that it is probably not as deadly as SARS.

April 28

National Day of Mourning for workers

killed on the job.

April 28 - National Day of Mourning for workers killed on the job

History shows that workers were first killed on job in mass; for example, the Qin Dynasty in 221 BC, when the Great Wall of China was built. Did you know that a million workers were killed constructing it? As the wall was being built, workers who were killed were buried in the wall with little thought.

In addition, the industrial revolution (1790-1870) hit the European continent like a tidal wave. New methods made it more efficient to exploit workers for profits. The rich didn't care for the safety of their workers. Many workers lost their lives, and many more were mutilated and crippled for life, thousands of others died from workplace diseases. As the rich stuffed their pockets with money, workers killed on the job were being stuffed into body bags, hauled out of the workplace and thrown on the human scrap pile.

Nearly five Canadians died every working day in workplace-related deaths from 1993 to 2005. Globally, 335,000 workers die as a result of unsafe work each year. This does not include all the workers who are injured on the job and end up with a permanent disability.

If it could be demonstrated to the bosses of the world that workplace deaths cost them money and loss of production, then you would see changes made to protect workers. For example, of the 335,000 workers killed yearly, imagine how many lost days of production there are for family, friends, and coworkers to attend the funerals of their loved ones? In Canada, the least number of days for bereavement is three. Multiply that by the number of deaths in Canada at 1000 per year and at a minimum you end up with 30,000 lost days of production per year. This is of course if only one person takes time off to mourn the death, but this is not usually the case. Workplace fatalities involve more lost time. It affects co-workers that are affected emotionally and psychologically. They may never recover. In the end, production is lost and that is what effects the boss.

On April 28 - please take time to reflect on the lives lost in the workplace and remember your rights under OHSA.
